Valette Wines, California

Joined by Chef Dustin Valette

Valette's curiosity about winemaking was piqued as a young man in his family's vineyards. Eventually, Valette tried his hand at garage wines, sourcing juice from local growers, and together enjoying the fruits of their shared labor. After learning the process, he decided to start a small production wine brand, Valette Wine, made in collaboration with three notable winemakers, Bob Cabral (Pinot Noir and Rosé of Pinot Noir), Jesse Katz (Cabernet Sauvignon), and Tom Rochioli (Chardonnay), each masterful stewards of their favored varietal. After a few memorable vintages, the wines have developed their own cult following.

COOL KIDS COOKING WITH CHEF BETANIA SALLES

Saturday, December 27

9:30 – 11:30 a.m. & 12:30 – 2:30 p.m. | $115

In this class, we lead kids on exciting cooking adventures where budding chefs learn recipes and skills to create tasty, healthy dishes.

Cooking is fun and "real food" is really good! There are plenty of reasons to get kids in the kitchen at an early age. Learning to make simple recipes can boost a child's math and verbal skills. And as any adult who has baked a cake knows, science is behind the magic that converts a bowl of batter into a delicious celebration. Great cooking is about more than recipes—it's about techniques.

In our classes, Carysfort Kitchen Chef de Cuisine Betania Salles, CEC will focus on the fun and creative aspects of cooking. This cooking class will bring joy and accomplishment to your child – and maybe even some delicious treats for your family. Designed for ages 8-12, this class creates the perfect foundation for a lifetime of great cooking, all while having fun trying something new. The best part—they'll get to eat everything they make! All kids' classes are drop-off classes – kids only please.

"Cooking is a way to teach children about reading or math."

– Emeril Lagasse

Before coming to Ocean Reef Club, Chef Betania Salles was Chef de Cuisine for Imlee Indian Bistro in Pinecrest for seven years. Chef Salles received rave reviews from critics and diners alike during her tenure at Imlee and as Chef de Cuisine at Fontana Restaurant at the Biltmore Hotel in Coral Gables. She now heads the Carysfort Kitchen.

Salles first came to the Club to be Chef de Cuisine at the Islander. Her exhilarating cuisine is inspired by her international background and finessed with contemporary American touches and seasonal ingredients. Brazilian-born Salles acquired much of her interest in quality cooking from her father, a butcher, and her mother who took great pride in cooking with excellent ingredients. It was natural that Betania would become a chef. This journey led her to the Middle East, Portugal, Spain, Italy, and home to Brazil where she opened four restaurants in a ten-year span.

Join Chef Betania for a class filled with vivid flavors, seasonal ingredients, and unexpected combinations.

SIZZLE & SAVOR

CHEFS TERE GALLINA & NICOLAS MARTINEZ

Monday, January 12

9:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m. | $140

Tuesday, January 13

Vine to Table Dinner

with Peter Michael Winery, California

6:30 p.m. | $275++

Raised in Venezuela by parents of Spanish and Italian descent, food played a major role in Maria Teresa Gallina's childhood. Her family moved to Miami when she was 15 years old. During a college internship in New York, a visit to Gramercy Tavern led to an unexpected introduction to Pastry Chef Miro Uskokovic. He invited Gallina to stage at the restaurant, marking the beginning of her industry career. Persistent in gaining experience, she landed a pastry job at ATLA, where she worked for six months before returning to Miami in 2018. Back at home, she joined the team at Rising Stars alum Brad Kilgore's Alter, becoming a junior sous chef alongside her future husband, Nicolas Martinez.

Martinez got his chops in the kitchen while living in Uruguay. After culinary school, he came to the United States, landing first in Charlotte, North Carolina. After a visit to Miami, he decided to move to the 305. His first job in town was at Alter in Wynwood, where he worked his way up in the kitchen and eventually became a junior sous chef before joining the opening team of Kilgore's Kaido.

When Alter and Kaido shut down during the pandemic, Gallina and Martinez took on co chef de cuisine roles at Itamae under Rising Stars alums Nando and Valerie Chang, where they collaborated on menu development and team leadership. Their complementary skill sets and shared work ethic naturally evolved into a partnership, leading them to open their own restaurant, Recoveco, in 2024. Gallina and Martinez are heavily engaged in Miami's food scene through organizations like the Rare Fruit Council, and collaborations with local farmers and fishermen. Their à la carte tasting menu at Recoveco reflects their seasonal, global approach while also daring guests to lean into the new and unfamiliar.

LATIN TAPESTRY WITH CHEF ANTHONY LAMAS

9:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m. | $140

Tuesday, January 20

Vine to Table Dinner

with Vina Cobos Winery, Argentina

6:30 p.m. | $275++

Anthony Lamas' Latin culinary roots run deep as he found his passion for food at a young age while working in his family's Spanish restaurant. Likewise, his mother's heirloom recipes sparked his interest in the cuisine of his Mexican and Puerto Rican heritage. By helping prepare meals on the family farm and participating in Future Farmers of America, Lamas was practicing the "farm to table" philosophy before it was a national movement. To pursue his dream of becoming a professional chef, Lamas trained with the San Diego Culinary Apprenticeship Program and worked with Jeff Tunks at the Loews Coronado Bay Resort. Under Tunks' tutelage, Lamas explored West Coast flavors and Pacific Rim recipes; he credits the acclaimed chef as his mentor.

In 1992, Lamas discovered Louisville, Kentucky as an emerging culinary destination and moved there. His style of cooking was unique to the area, and in 2005 he opened Seviche to rave reviews. Seviche has consistently maintained a four-star rating from the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Latina Magazine named Lamas a "leader of the Latin food revolution" alongside chefs like Douglas Rodriguez and Jose Andres.

Lamas has also garnered significant national attention. In 2014, he was one of 16 chefs asked to take part in the James Beard Foundation's fifth Chefs Boot Camp for Policy and Change. He has also cooked at the famed James Beard House six times, is a 4-time James Beard Award Nominee and has participated in the James Beard Celebrity Chef Tour Dinner Series in Nashville, Saratoga and Asheville.

With his passionate nature and engaging personality, Lamas is a seasoned TV chef – he won on Food Networks' "Extreme Chef," has appeared on the Cooking Channel's "America's Best Bites" and was featured in "Back Home," a documentary produced by Diego Luna that explored his culinary connections to Mexico. Most recently, he competed on the debut episode of Food Network's "Beat Bobby Flay" and helped bring new life to struggling venues as a culinary expert on Paramount Network's "Bar Rescue."

In addition to his commitment to "spicing up the South" with his Nuevo Latino cuisine, Lamas is dedicated to raising awareness of sustainable seafood practices. His efforts earned him a Seafood Ambassador Award. In 2015 he released his first cookbook, "Southern Heat: New Southern Cooking, Latin Style".

Tuesday, February 3

Vine to Table Dinner

with Kosta Browne Winery, California

6:30 p.m. | $275++

Chef Scott Drewno was raised in the heart of New York's Finger Lakes wine region, a rural area known for its vineyards and family-owned farms. Watching his mother turn fresh, seasonal produce from local farm stands into bubbling pies and cobblers first piqued his interest in cooking and planted the seed for Drewno's culinary ambition.

Drewno joined the Wolfgang Puck Fine Dining Group in 1998. At Chinois, he learned to meld French cooking techniques with vibrant Asian flavors, and at Spago, he came to understand the importance of beginning with only the finest ingredients. Drewno then furthered his knowledge and solidified his passion for Asian cuisines at Jean-Georges Vongerichten's Vong and Stephen Hansen's Ruby Foo's.

In 2007, Wolfgang Puck tapped Drewno as the opening Executive Chef of The Source where he received the coveted "Chef of the Year" prize in 2010 and 2016. Drewno has won many culinary competitions benefiting important causes, including the DC Crab Cake Competition, Pig Out for Diabetes, and DC Central Kitchen's Capital Food Fight. He won the Washington, DC leg of Cochon 555 (twice), a traveling culinary competition promoting sustainable farming of heritage breed pigs, and won the Cochon 555 Heritage Fire barbecue competition.

He also serves on the Board of the RAMW and is an Honorary Board Member of the DC Food & Beverage Collective. Each year, Drewno hosts fundraising events for DCFBC and the George Washington University Hospital Mobile Mammography Unit, two causes he holds near and dear to his heart.

In 2017, he formed The Fried Rice Collective with fellow chef Danny Lee and restaurateur Andrew Kim, and they opened their first restaurant, CHIKO, in Capitol Hill. Due to the restaurant's overwhelming popularity, The Fried Rice Collective eventually opened two other locations in the United States: one in DuPont Circle in Washington, DC and the other in Encinitas, California.

Drewno and The Fried Rice Collective decided to open a second concept in 2019. Anju, a sophisticated amalgam of traditional Korean flavors and modern cooking techniques, was recently named the number one best restaurant in DC by Washingtonian magazine. Anju has been featured in several national and local publications, such as the Food & Wine, Travel + Leisure, Forbes and The Wall Street Journal.

VINTAGE VALETTE WITH CHEF DUSTIN VALETTE

Monday, March 23
9:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m. | $140

Tuesday, March 24
Vine to Table Dinner
with Valette Wines, California
6:30 p.m. | $275++

After graduating from the Culinary Institute of America at Hyde Park in 2000, Chef Valette made the bold choice to book his own stagiaire program at San Francisco's most exciting restaurants, Charles Nob Hill, Fifth Floor, La Folie, Fleur De Lis, Gary Danko, and Aqua. Over six months, he learned from the best. This knowledge still drives his culinary ambitions.

Next, Chef Valette landed at Thomas Keller's one-Michelin-star Bouchon in the Napa Valley. He continued to expand his palette at Hokus at the Mandarin Oriental Hotel Honolulu, a five-star, five-diamond property. When Chef Valette came back to the Bay Area, he returned to the place he ended his stage, working at Michelin-starred Aqua in San Francisco, finally as executive sous chef under Laurent Manrique, for three years. At each remarkable kitchen, Chef Valette honed not only his culinary skills, but his leadership style.

After several years, it was time for a cook's tour of Europe. Serious kitchens are worlds unto themselves and Chef Valette was struck by curiosity about places with centuries-old traditions and close communities.

Upon his return, he opened and helmed his first kitchen as Executive Chef at VOX Restaurant & Wine Lounge in Henderson, Nevada. Naturally, he came back to Healdsburg, where his great-grandfather Honoré settled some 100 years ago. Here he began his six-years as Executive Chef at Dry Creek Kitchen. At Dry Creek Kitchen, Chef Valette developed that realization into practices and relationships that continue today. Working with winemakers to create inspired pairings quickly became a hallmark of his tenure.

Over glasses of pilfered wine and a view of the vineyards, Chef Valette and his brother Aaron made a pact to open their own restaurant someday. In 2015, that fraternal commitment became a reality when Valette opened in downtown Healdsburg, in a location that was once home to Honoré's French-style Home Bakery. Valette is a fine-casual restaurant and a hugely popular locals' favorite. The menu at Valette is noted for its inventive and flavorful California cuisine, highlighting Chef Valette's French technique and proudly featuring ingredients sourced from Sonoma County.

"Cooking is my passion and I cannot wait to share it with you. Owning and operating restaurants allows me to share with our community what I love, highlighting our amazing farmers, ranchers and artisans that make Sonoma County such a special place to call home."
